Letter from our Pastor

An Extraordinary Parish for Ordinary People

Dear Friends in Christ,

After St John Henry Newman parted from his friends to follow truth to the Church of Rome, it meant his academic career at Oxford was over. He and his companions went to Rome and settled on the Oratory of St Philip Neri as the form of priestly life most suited to their temperament and abilities, and so they brought the Catholic Reformation phenomenon of the Oratory to England. But people are people, and so Newman had a falling out with Frederick Faber, one of his closest friends and one of the most prolific spiritual writers in the English language. The Oratory was divided between London and Birmingham, and Newman's dream of building an Oratory at his beloved Oxford did not come to fruition until 1990!

In Newman's time, Catholics were excluded from most of the academic, professional and political life of England. Catholics were either wealthy recusant families who lived in crumbling palaces quietly praying for a better day for their religion, Irish or Italian immigrants who were despised by the Anglican elite, or the few converts from Protestantism who were considered turncoats by their families and friends and pariahs to the cradle Catholics who couldn't understand their resolute Englishness in the face of becoming Roman Catholics. Oxford had in many ways preserved a faint cultural Catholicism despite it all, more than anywhere else in England where Catholicism was almost entirely eradicated by Queen Elizabeth I. Today, you can see Oratorians, Benedictines, Dominicans, Jesuits, diocesan and Ordinariate clergy, all in their respective habits, along with Anglican ministers of both sexes in clerical dress all over Oxford, where the sound of church bells summon Catholics and Anglicans to rites of worship that were unthinkable in Newman's time at Oxford. The dreary Low Church worship of evangelicals is still there, but Catholicism is alive and well. My first day in England was a pilgrimage through the streets where Catholics in Oxford were hung, drawn, and quartered for remaining true to the fact that the Pope is the Vicar of Christ and that the Church is one.

The vibrant Catholic community at Oxford is really something to see. My usual haunt was the Oratory, where the Fathers welcomed me with open arms and hearts, and I was able to participate in some way in their life and spirituality. To be in a place which was so Roman and so English at the same time was deeply comforting. After the heat of Spain and the exoticness of Turkey, to go to High Mass at the Oratory, exquisitely executed and gloriously sung, with interminable lines for confession and the constant drone of baby noise from the families packing out the church at all hours, was like coming home. My sabbatical started with an exhaustion that drove me out of the Catholic bubble whose internal divisions I found stifling; it ended with a refreshment and renewal where the real reason for the Church and our faith had been given back to me as a grace.

The night before I left to come back to the States, I waited just like anybody else in the long confession line in the magnificent Westminster Cathedral in London. As one of the world's greatest living organists, Simon Jones, played Bach's Nun kommt her Heiden Heiland, one of the most stirring pieces of the Advent organ repertoire, the priest's hands extended over me with those beautiful words, Go in peace. "Father, you are going to spend many years unpacking everything that you experienced on this sabbatical, and God is going to use all of it. Just give thanks to Him."

The greatest Lesson from my sabbatical was, is and shall remain that of Psalm 100.4-5: Enter His gates with Thanksgiving and His courts with praise; give thanks to and praise His Name. For the Lord is good and His love endures forever, His faithfulness continues through all generations. Prince of Peace, thank you for giving me up for a time, and for your support on this part of my journey as we travel together to glory.

In Christ,

J. Christopher Smith

Celebrating the Liturgical Life of the Church

An Extraordinary Parish for Ordinary People

14 February: Feast of Saints Cyril and Methodius. Today, the Church honors two brothers known as the “Apostles of the Slavs” for their tireless work in spreading the Gospel throughout Eastern Europe. Born into a prestigious senatorial family in Thessalonica, in 815 and 826, Cyril and Methodius received an excellent education but renounced their wealth and status. They chose instead to become priests. Both were in a monastery when authorities from the Khazar Empire sent for a Christian missionary. Cyril was chosen and Methodius accompanied. They converted many. By the middle of the ninth century, Prince Rastislav of Moravia wrote to the Byzantine Emperor Michael III, asking for teachers who could teach his people the Christian faith in their own language. Cyril and Methodius were chosen. When they set out on this missionary journey, letters of a new Slavonic alphabet were revealed to them in answer to prayer. Together, they invented the “Cyrillic alphabet” as a way to communicate the faith. They translated the Scriptures and the Liturgy into this Slavonic. They said of their alphabet, ‘Receive this gift, which is more precious and greater than all silver and gold and precious stones and all magnificent wealth’. The two labored in Moravia for years, achieving great success in spreading the Faith. Their Byzantine origins and use of the vernacular language caused German church officials to regard them with suspicion. However, after being summoned to Rome, they met with Pope Adrian II who warmly approved of their methods. Cyril and Methodius were commended by the pope for their missionary activity and ordained bishops. Yet Cyril would not return to Moravia; he died in Rome on February 14, 869. He is buried in the Basilica of San Clemente. Methodius returned to Moravia and labored as a missionary among the Hungarians, Bulgarians, Dalmatians, and in Carinthia. Falling again under suspicion, he returned to Rome and defended the use of the Slavonic language in the liturgy. The Pope bestowed upon him the dignity of archbishop. After his return to Moravia, Methodius spread the light of faith in Bohemia and Poland, and went to Moscow to establish the diocese of Kiev. He suffered imprisonment for three years under German critics; Pope John VIII managed to have Methodius freed and reinstated as archbishop. Pope John VIII continued to support Methodius' use of the Slavic language, despite continuing controversy with the German church. Eventually, with the help of Greek priests, Methodius translated the whole Bible into the language that is known today as Church Slavonic. After a life spent spreading the Faith, Methodius died on April 6, 885. Both brothers are venerated in the Orthodox Church as saints with the title of “equal-to-apostles”. In 1880, Pope Leo XIII introduced their feast into the calendar of the Roman Catholic Church. In 1980, Pope St. John Paul II declared them co-patron saints of Europe, together with Saint Benedict of Nursia.

Saint Valentine: who was he?

Although hard to verify, legend states that Valentine, along with St. Marius, aided Christian martyrs during the Claudian persecution. Claudius issued a decree forbidding marriage, to increase army troops (believing single men better soldiers than married men). Valentine defied this decree and urged young lovers to come to him in secret to be married. Eventually he was discovered, arrested, and condemned to death. While in prison, Valentine befriended the jailer and his blind daughter. The daughter often brought him food and messages. Valentine was able to convert both father and daughter to Christianity. Legend says he also miraculously restored the daughter's sight. The night before his execution, he wrote a farewell message to the girl and signed it affectionately "From Your Valentine," a phrase that lives on today. He was executed on February 14, 273. The Martyrology says, “At Rome, on the Flaminian Way, the heavenly birthday of the blessed martyr Valentine, a priest. After performing many miraculous cures and giving much wise counsel he was beaten and beheaded under Claudius Caesar.” A valentine has become a universal symbol of friendship and affection shared on the anniversary of his death: St. Valentine's Day.

Happenings & Needs

An Extraordinary Parish for Ordinary People

40 days for life

You are invited to join other Christians throughout the Upstate to take part in our local 40 Days for Life effort from 2 March—10 April. 40 Days for Life, a non-denominational prayer campaign to end abortion, began in College Station, Texas. It has expanded not only nationally, but internationally since its inception in 2007. There are two campaigns a year, one beginning on Ash Wednesday for 40 days of Lent. The Fall campaign begins on the fourth Wednesday of September. These prayer campaigns are initiated and organized at the grassroots level in communities throughout the nation and abroad. Prayer, fasting and public vigil at the abortion facility are key components. The National Organization requires anyone participating in a campaign sign a promise to conduct themselves in a peaceful, respectful manner. Many believe the Holy Spirit is using this movement to end abortion and at the same time bring people of many faiths together. To find out more go to the website or Facebook page or contact Valerie at 864.297.8838.

- Kickoff Rally: 1 March at 6.30p at 1143 Grove Road
- Our parish is responsible for praying outside of the local abortion facility on Mondays across the 40 days campaign
- Closing Celebration: 10 April at 3p at 1143 Grove Road

fr smith's spiritual reading 2022

Christopher Carsten is a bright young lay theologian who teaches at the Liturgical Institute at Mundelein Seminary in Chicago. He has written a tremendously beautiful and theologically rich devotional meditation on the Paschal Mystery. Every year the Church during Lent, Holy Week and Easter commemorates those events of salvation history which brought about our salvation. But are these merely historical remembrances, or is there more going on? The liturgical worship of the Church renders those events and the spiritual realities they signify real to us even now. Carstens can guide our Lenten journey this 2022 to a deeper appreciation of how these events come alive for us in the Sacred Liturgy.
