Letter from our Director of Music & Choirmaster

An Extraordinary Parish for Ordinary People

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

I have been afforded the opportunity to write to you this week to inform you of some recent developments taking place behind the scenes here at Prince of Peace. This past autumn, Fr. Smith tasked myself and Elizabeth Wilson, our organist, with creating a Pipe Organ Committee to explore the possibility of purchasing a real pipe organ to replace our aging Allen digital organ, a twenty-year-old computer with speakers whose lifespan is uncertain but which may not last the decade. A five-member committee was formed, and with the additional help of our pipe organ consultant, Alan Montgomery, organist at the Riverside Church in Manhattan, we set to work learning about the process of fundraising and building a pipe organ, examining prospective builders, and soliciting proposals. Following initial conversations with a number of builders, the committee solicited proposals from four builders: Casavant Frères of Saint-Hyacinthe, Quebec; Rosales Organ Builders of Los Angeles, CA; Schoenstein & Co. of Benicia, CA; and Kegg Pipe Organ Builders of Hartville, OH.

On 11 March 2024, the committee voted unanimously to select Charles Kegg of Kegg Pipe Organ Builders as our builder of choice. The factors which led us to this decision were the relative proximity of the Kegg workshop, which will reduce shipping and travel costs; the smaller size of the company, which works on one pipe organ at a time in order to give each project their full attention; and, most importantly, our very positive experience with Charles Kegg and his stellar reputation as a skilled and knowledgeable organ builder.

The proposal we have received from Charles Kegg is for a 3 manual, 49 stop, 57 rank pipe organ quoted at $2,833,486. This is an initial proposal and is subject to change as we further tailor the instrument to the specific needs of Prince of Peace. Mr. Kegg was able to visit Prince of Peace on 4 March, and his latest proposal therefore reflects an informed view of the architecture, acoustics, and musical needs of our church. Included in this bulletin you will find an artist's rendering of the proposed instrument and case, also subject to change, as well as information about Kegg Pipe Organ Builders and answers to a set of questions we anticipate the parish may have about the proposed project. Please take the time to read through this information, and if you have further questions, or feel especially moved to express your support for this project, please reach out to me in person or at philip.reed@princeofpeacetaylors.org.

In Christ,
Philip Reed
Director of Music & Choirmaster

Did you know fifty years ago, in March 1974, the Parish and Goals Development Committee of St Mary's in downtown Greenville met and decided there needed to be a new parish on the Eastside. That same month the new community was entitled the Greer-Taylor's Endeavor. Mass was held in various Protestant churches, such as Grace Methodist Church in Greer, until September 1974 when we the new mission was hosted more stably at Lee Road United Methodist Church. In October 1974 14.5 acres of land was purchased with the generous help of St Mary's parishioners for a new parish. In June 1975 the Greer-Taylor's Endeavor came to an end and was split into two new communities. On 12 December 1975 Bishop Unterkoefler erected the Taylor's community as Prince of Peace with Christmas as the Patronal Feast.

This means that we have embarked on the fiftieth anniversary of the place we call a spiritual home. We have a number of exciting events planned all the way until the official Closing of the Golden Jubilee of Prince of Peace on the Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe on Friday, 12 December 2025.

We ask that, if you have unwanted items that have to do with the history of the parish, you consider donating them to the Archives. After Easter, we will have a survey to ask parishioners about their commitment to a capital campaign for the future of Prince of Peace, with special emphasis on music and our award-winning school, that will begin during the Jubilee Year. It's a big year for us, and I invite every single family who calls Prince of Peace their spiritual home to consider recruiting one other family to join us! Happy Anniversary and on with the Party!

Prince of Peace
Pipe Organ Project

Prince of Peace Pipe Organ Project

Your Questions Answered!

Why do churches need organs?

As Pope Pius XI wrote in the apostolic constitution Divini Cultus, “The traditionally appropriate musical instrument of the Church is the organ, which, by reason of its extraordinary grandeur and majesty, has been considered a worthy adjunct to the Liturgy....Let our churches resound with organ-music that gives expression to the majesty of the edifice and breathes the sacredness of the religious rites.” The organ calls us to worship, sustains our singing, aids our reflection, expresses alike our sorrow and our joy, and gives the worthiest voice we possess, save our own, to the praise of God.

Don't we already have an organ?

For a parish renowned for the beauty of its liturgy and music, you may be surprised to learn that Prince of Peace does not, in fact, have a pipe organ! What you hear at our liturgies each week is actually an electronic simulation of an organ, built by the Allen Organ Company – in other words, a computer connected to a bank of speakers. Digital organs of this kind are a convenient, mass-produced solution for churches lacking the space and budget for a real pipe organ, and though ours has served us well the past two decades, they are not without their shortcomings. Among their most significant downsides is their limited lifespan.

Why do we need a new organ now?

Our digital organ was manufactured in December of 2001, which means that our organ is quite literally a twenty-two year old computer. To put that in perspective, when our organ was built, the hottest new things in tech were Windows XP and the first iPod. While we have done our best to maintain our Allen organ, a typical lifespan for these instruments is between twenty and thirty years. Components will inevitably begin to fail due to age and wear, and speakers are constantly deteriorating. Certain stop knobs on our organ are beginning to wear out, and you may have heard the occasional rattle of busted speaker cones. While our organ thankfully has yet to show major problems, we have already surpassed the low end of its projected lifespan. Rather than wait for a catastrophic failure, the proactive and responsible time to replace this instrument is now.

Why not just buy another digital organ?

Digital organs are a mass-produced simulation of the real thing, designed to suit the widest variety of architectural and liturgical settings possible. Their basic tone is noticeably “digital” to the trained ear, and lacks the brilliance and richness of sound produced by wind passing through physical pipes. Our organ has a fair number of stops, but because it is a mass-produced, one-size-fits-all instrument, some of the sounds are more or less unplayable because they are too boomy or too muddy and weren't designed to fit our space. While you may not have noticed anything lacking, if you could hear our Allen compared to a real pipe organ in the same space, the difference would be night and day.

It is true that digital organs are cheaper to buy in the short term, and they do serve a valuable purpose. When our Allen was purchased around 2003, our parish finances were focused fully on paying off the recently completed church, and a pipe organ campaign would have been out of the question. However, the cost of replacing digital organs every few decades adds up and can often even surpass the cost of a pipe organ over its far longer lifespan, with an inferior result. At Prince of Peace, we have devoted ourselves to giving the best to God wherever possible, from our vestments to our candlesticks to our music and liturgy, and our organ should not be the exception. Digital organs are the right solution for some churches, but a thriving, liturgically and musically minded parish like ours is precisely the kind of parish that can and ought to invest in a real pipe organ.

What's so great about a real pipe organ?

A pipe organ is a work of art, a mechanical marvel, and a means of offering the highest praise to God. In the words of Pope Benedict XVI, it is an instrument that “helps people to perceive something of the splendor of our faith.” The sound produced by air blown through pipes is far richer and more complex than any speaker can hope to achieve, and can only be truly experienced in the flesh. And a large, well-designed pipe organ is immensely flexible, equally capable of ethereal whispers and majestic bombast.

Every pipe organ is a custom instrument. Rather than a mass-produced solution, a pipe organ would be a unique work of craftsmanship designed specifically to serve our church, our congregation, and our manner of worship. A skilled builder will carefully consider every facet of our needs when designing an organ, from the church architecture, to the size of the congregation and choir, to the styles of music employed. The instrument will then be built by hand and fully assembled in their workshop, before being disassembled, shipped, and reassembled on location. Finally, once the organ has been installed, the builder will painstakingly “voice” (minutely adjust) each and every pipe in place in its new home so that every sound functions beautifully and cohesively in our church.

Pipe organs can last an extraordinarily long time – the oldest functional organs in Europe date to the 1400s! A well-built, well-maintained pipe organ can be expected to last many decades before needing refurbishment, and with proper care can continue playing for centuries. Indeed, pipe organs have often been known to outlive the churches they serve. A pipe organ should rightfully be thought of as a musical heirloom, an inheritance which will continue to uplift and sustain the worship of our parish for generations to come.

What about the window above the choir loft?

Pipe organs and windows are rarely friends, and it is very common for a large window to be located exactly where a pipe organ would naturally sit on the rear wall of a church. Such is the case in our church! We are perhaps strangely fortunate that we do not have an exquisite stained glass rose window there (which have been covered by organs nonetheless!) but the window does force difficult trade-offs. Our difficulty is compounded by the shallow depth of our choir loft, which was not originally intended to house either an organ or the choir. In order to preserve enough space for our choirs to operate, a pipe organ will be more or less limited to the uppermost concrete step, a mere 6 ½ ft deep – extremely shallow for a large pipe organ. When depth is limited, width and height must make up the difference, and in our church that makes covering the rear window the simplest and most affordable solution. There are alternatives, such as building a split case around the window, but this would cost more, since it means building two cases instead of one, and would run into its own issues by covering the heating and air vents instead. We therefore believe that covering the window with a beautiful pipe organ, in order to use our limited resources to maximize the quality of the organ, is a trade-off worth making.

Can we afford a pipe organ?

Though we all want to give the best to God, the significant financial investment required to build a pipe organ should not be taken lightly. In terms of the financial health of the parish, however, we believe that this is as good a time as any to take on an ambitious investment for the future of the church. Thanks to your generosity, on its 50th anniversary our parish finds itself debt-free and financially stable, ready to embark upon a project to celebrate our Golden Jubilee.

The cost of an organ sounds overwhelming to any one person, it becomes far more manageable when shared across an entire parish. For example, if each of our roughly 1000 active parishioner households contributed equally, a 5 year campaign to raise $3 million would cost just $600 annually per household. Of course, not everyone will participate and some families will not be able to contribute that much, but some families may be moved to contribute far more. In addition to broad-based “crowdfunding,” most pipe organ campaigns will receive at least a few large donations that anchor the project. These large donations, perhaps given in memory of a loved one and typically receiving lasting recognition or even naming rights, also help immensely in bringing down the cost shared by the parish at large.

Pipe organs are a collective good, and they require collective effort. They usually reside in churches, symphony halls, and other public institutions precisely because they require the support of an entire community. Once built, they stand as a lasting testament to the generosity and devotion of those who built them.

Are there hidden costs we should consider?

As with any large building project, a pipe organ will incur expenses beyond the sticker price. A pipe organ will require maintenance, including regular tuning (about twice annually) and minor repairs. Routine maintenance on an appropriately sized organ for Prince of Peace can be expected to cost between $2000-3000 annually. In addition to this routine maintenance, it is typical for a pipe organ to require a more thorough refurbishment every half-century or so. One responsible way of anticipating these costs would be to establish an organ endowment as part of our capital campaign. The goal of the campaign would therefore ideally be to raise not only the funds to pay for the initial installation, but sufficient additional funds to support the ongoing needs of the instrument. The establishment of a well-funded organ endowment would ensure the longevity of our pipe organ and prevent it from ever becoming an undue drain on parish finances.

I'm convinced! How can I help?

If you are excited by the prospect of a pipe organ at Prince of Peace, there are several ways you can help. Firstly, you can share this information with a friend in the parish and help get them excited, too! Secondly, the church will be conducting a survey on Pentecost, May 19, to gauge the level of interest and financial support for this project. Please make a plan to participate in the survey, and prayerfully consider what you might be able to contribute as an annual pledge to a multi-year pipe organ campaign.

Lastly, if you have questions about the project, or feel especially moved to support this project financially or otherwise, please contact our director of music, Philip Reed, at philip.reed@princeofpeacetaylors.org.
