From Our Pastor

Dear Parishioners,

Last week I wrote about how to prepare for Holy Mass, and I drew a distinction between preparation for Mass and preparation for Holy Communion. While I am a great advocate for frequent Communion, I am perplexed by the fact that many people think the only reason they should ever excuse themselves from Communion is if they have committed a mortal sin or are in a situation of impaired Communion with the Church. This sense of automatic access has led to a sense of entitlement: familiarity has bred contempt. For centuries, Catholics went to Mass every Sunday, but they took extra time and preparation for when they received Holy Communion at Mass. Making a good confession, wearing your Sunday best, and setting aside time for a thorough preparation for Communion and a thanksgiving after Communion were all part of a disciplined approach to receiving the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world.

When I was in college and understood this, I started to bring a prayer book with me to the chapel to use certain traditional formularies of prayer to guide my approach to Holy Communion. Devotions before and after Holy Communion were written by such luminaries as St Ambrose and St Thomas Aquinas, and I found that praying those, even in the pew before and after Holy Communion, while others were receiving, centered me and opened my heart up to greater piety and devotion. While I do not believe generally in praying the Rosary while ignoring the Mass prayers, I did find praying it during Communion was helpful.

In college, I bought an old prayer book called Blessed be God which has been my companion ever since. It has been reprinted and has beautiful artwork as well.[1] When I went to Rome to study, I realized that sacristies often had a little nook with a kneeler with a large poster of these prayers where the priest was supposed to say these prayers. I don't do them every time I say Mass, especially during the week, but I do have them in the sacristy and often pray them on Sundays.

Making a proper act of thanksgiving after receiving Holy Communion is important for the spiritual life.

Short and discreet times of fasting before we receive Communion (the Church requires a one-hour fast before Communion, but the ancient practice was from midnight) and also actually from Communion to increase our hunger and thirst for spiritual food, help us to avoid taking the Eucharist for granted. While we are normally only allowed to receive once a day (we can receive twice if we have been present for the entirety of a second Mass), some people could profit by attending a second Mass if their state in life permits it.

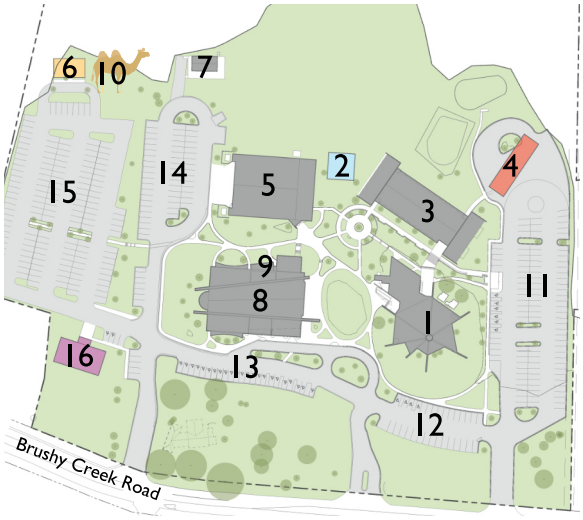

Pope St Pius X, the pope who lowered the age of First Communion to the age of reason, celebrated Mass every morning and his priest-secretary served the Mass. After Mass, he would take off his Mass vestments and put on a surplice and serve as altar boy for his priest-secretary's Mass. If the Pope is a lot busier than we are, and made time for an entire Mass as thanksgiving after his own Mass, does that not tell us something about our priorities?

Canon Christopher Smith

On the Cover: On All Saints' Day, we remember the communion of saints—not only through the statues and sacred images throughout our church, but also through the relics housed at Prince of Peace. Among them are relics of St Peter, St Augustine, St Thérèse of Lisieux, St Teresa of Calcutta, St Francis of Assisi, and St Elizabeth Ann Seton. Some are enshrined within our altars; others are displayed for veneration on feast days. These tangible connections to the saints remind us of the holy men and women who have gone before us in faith.
